The wallpaper activity was conducted by the Computer Science Department with the participation of a large number of students. Nearly 40 students wrote and presented their articles and wallpapers. The details and photographs are attached.

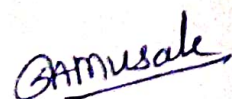

The students of the Computer Science Department participated in the wallpaper activity. Around 40 students of the department exhibited their wallpapers and posters during this event.

In this activity, students presented various types of wallpapers, including landscape paintings and freehand paintings. The objective was to develop the ability to observe and portray numerous natural elements such as conch shells, mussels, leaves, flowers, birds, animals, the sky, sunrises, sunsets, rainbows, and more. This innovation allows students to explore their creativity.

The art of depicting the beautiful shapes, colors, and diversity of various objects in nature is known as landscape painting. Freehand drawing, on the other hand, involves creating a precise and proportional reproduction of shapes or figures by relying on the natural turn of the hand and eye. This helps in developing an understanding of balance, proportion, and rhythm, without the use of geometric or mathematical tools.

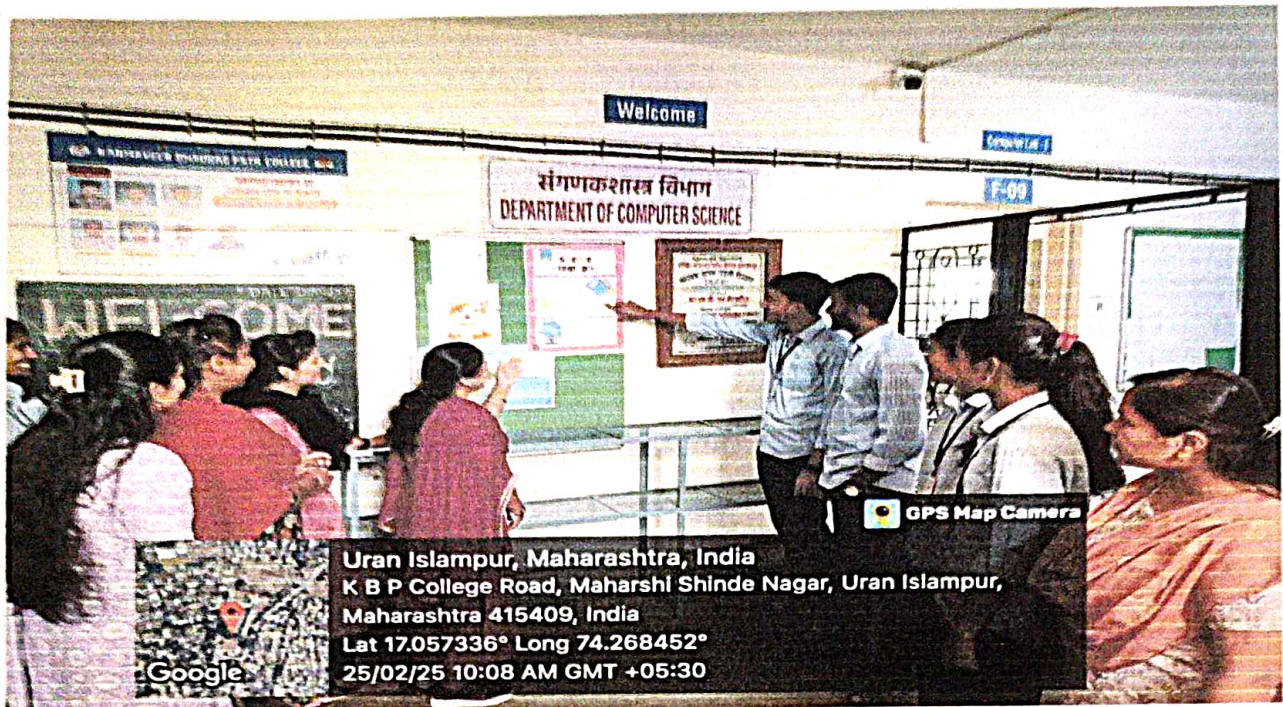

During the presentation, the Head of Department, Mrs. P. N. Patil, along with staff members Miss. R. V. Bandgar, Mrs. D. J. Patil, Miss. M. V. Shinde, and Miss. S. A. Musale, were present to encourage the students.
